

Books Received

Books marked with an asterisk (*) are still available for review. Books marked with a dagger (†) are reviewed in this issue.

- Irving H. ANELLIS, Van Heijenoort: Logic and Its History in the Work and Writings of Jean van Heijenoort (Ames, Modern Logic Publishing, 1994)
- Martin GARDNER, The Night Is Large. Collected Essays 1938–1995 (New York, St. Martin's Press, 1996)
- *Catherine GOLDSTEIN, Jeremy GRAY and Jim RITTER (editors), L'Europe mathématique (Paris, Éditions de la Maison des sciences de l'homme, 1996)
- Martin GOLDSTERN and Haim JUDAH, The Incompleteness Phenomenon: A New Course In Mathematical Logic (Wellesley, MA., A.K. Peters, 1995)
- *Theodore HAILPERIN, Sentential Probability Logic. Origins, Development, Current Status, and Technical Applications (Bethlehem, PA/London, Lehigh University Press, Associated University Presses, 1996)
- Roman KALUŻA, Through a Reporter's Eyes. The Life of Stefan Banach (Basel/Boston/Berlin, Birkhäuser, 1996)
- H. Jerome KEISLER and Jerome ROBBIN, Mathematical Logic and Computability (New York/.../Toronto, McGraw-Hill, 1996)
- Robert C. MOORE, Logic and Representation (Stanford, CSLI Publications, 1995)
- *Mieczysław OMYŁA, Zarys logiki (Warszwa, Wydawnictwa Szkolne i Pedagogiczne, 1995)
- *Volker PECKHAUS, Hermann Ulrici (1806–1884). Der Hallesche Philosoph und die englische Algebra der Logik (Halle/Saale, Hallescher Verlag, 1995)
- R. M. SAINSBURY, Paradoxes, second edition (Cambridge, Cambridge University Press, 1995)
- *Luis VEGA REÑÓN, Una guía de historia de la Lógica (Madrid, Universidad Nacional De Educación A Distancia, 1996)