

INFORMATION FOR AUTHORS

GENERAL INFORMATION. The main languages of publication are English, French, German, and Russian. Contributions may also be accepted in other languages determined by the linguistic capabilities of the editorial board and its referees. Please submit contributions to the most appropriate editorial board member (for areas of specialization and languages in which each board member will accept papers, refer to the Editorial Board Membership listing on the masthead). Authors writing in a language not their own are advised to consult a native user of the language of composition before submitting their papers for consideration.

All contributions will be refereed. Copies of the referees' comments will be forwarded to the author along with the Editor's decision. Our policy is to provide a source for the most expeditious publication possible at the lowest possible cost to subscribers of papers of high scholarly quality.

GUIDELINES FOR INITIAL SUBMISSION OF MANUSCRIPTS. Three (3), paper copies of manuscripts for consideration should if possible be sent to either the editor or the most appropriate editorial board member. Inability of authors to provide the requisite number of copies will NOT however be grounds for automatic rejection of their work for consideration. Papers should be double-spaced and have generous margins for corrections and referees' comments.

The editor will notify the author of the decision and provide the author with a copy of referees' reports.

GUIDELINES FOR PREPARATION OF FINAL MANUSCRIPTS.

General formatting instructions. Upon notification of acceptance of papers for publication, authors should prepare their own complete and corrected manuscript. This places the primary duty for the careful preparation of manuscripts upon the individual authors. Electronic submissions are strongly encouraged. Papers submitted electronically may be sent either on diskette or by electronic mail in either T_EX (plain T_EX and L^AT_EX are strongly preferred) or composed using the author's preferred wordprocessor. Electronic files submitted on diskette should have labels indicating (a) the platform (Mac, DOS, Windows, etc) on which the file was created and (b) the application(s) used to create the file(s) and the version of T_EX being used. In addition to the electronic file, one hard copy (paper copy) of the final manuscript should be submitted regardless of the software used for preparation of electronic files. Authors unable to provide electronic files must provide three scanner-legible hard copies.

Authors are responsible for the careful preparation of their own work, and the editor may return to the author for further work any paper requiring major corrections or revisions.

The following standard instructions and ingredients are required whether preparing manuscripts electronically or in hard copy:

Cover page. The first page of articles must include the title of the paper, author's name, mailing address (and institutional affiliation), an abstract or descriptive summary (not longer than one page) written in one or more of the journal's primary languages, preferably English, French, German, or Russian, and the appropriate AMS (MOS) 1991 subject classifications. An address for electronic mail may be included in addition to the regular mailing address.

Footnotes and references. Cited references at the end of the review should be listed alphabetically by author and year. Complete bibliographic information must also include place of publication, publisher, and, for articles, page range. Notes should whenever possible be incorporated directly into the text, either parenthetically or as a "Remark". Informational footnotes which cannot easily be incorporated into the text should be numbered consecutively throughout the paper and if possible collected at the end of the paper. Reference footnotes to bibliographic items should be avoided in all cases; instead, reference notes should always be inserted in the text. Thus, for example a reference to page 123 of Hausdorff's Mengenlehre (3rd edition, Berlin, W. de Gruyter, 1935), would be of the form: "According to Hausdorff [1935, 123]..." Similarly, Proposition *51' 41 on page 345 of vol. 1 of the Principia mathematica would appear in the text either as "...Whitehead and Russell [1910, Prop. *51' 41, 345]" or as "...[Whitehead and Russell 1910, Prop. *51' 41, 345]." Explanatory material may be appended to the end of a citation to avoid footnotes in the text.

When references to personal letters, papers presented at meetings, and other unpublished material are used, copies should be made available to the Editor if such material may be of help in the evaluation of the paper.

Symbols, diagrams, Equations. Equations of less than half the length of a line of text may be inserted in the text unless they are to be referred to frequently by name or number, and then they should be displayed. Equations longer than half the length of a line of text should always be displayed.

For the transliteration of the Cyrillic alphabet, we have adopted the current system in use by Mathematical Reviews as the general rule. Exceptions are made only in the case of names which have already attained a common accepted transliteration (e.g. Lobachevsky rather than Lobachevskij, Lobatchewsky, etc.) or the person owning the name has selected a preferred transliteration (e.g. Khinchin or Khinchine, not Hinchin, for Хинчин, Zhgalkin or Gegalkine for Жегалкин, Mints rather than Minc for Минн). Use the author's own transliteration for works written in French English, German, etc., e.g. Alexandroff for Alexandroff & Hopf's Topologie but Aleksandrov otherwise. Transliterations requiring use of diacritical marks should be avoided whenever possible.

For additional guidance in formatting and bibliographic style, please refer to A Manual for Authors of Mathematical Papers (Providence, American Mathematical Society, 8th edition, 1984) or to Ellen Swanson, Mathematics into Type (Providence, American Mathematical Society, revised edition, 1979, 1986 reprint).

Inability of authors to provide final copy of their papers in accordance with Modern Logic Publishing's guidelines will NOT be grounds for automatic rejection of their work for publication.

Authors unable to provide electronic files may either submit three (3) copies of clean paper manuscripts or may request Modern Logic Publishing to prepare final manuscripts for them at a cost of
