

EPILOGUE

*Alas, that Spring should vanish with the Rose
That Youth's sweet-scented Manuscript should close
The Nightingale that in the Branches sang,
Ah, whence, and whither flown again, who knows.*

Khayyam Naishapuri: Persian Astronomer and Poet (1048-1131)