

INFORMATION FOR AUTHORS

GENERAL INFORMATION. The main languages of publication are English, French, German, and Russian. Contributions may also be accepted in other languages determined by the linguistic capabilities of the editorial board and its referees. It is advisable when possible to submit contributions to the editor, who will then route them to the most appropriate editorial board member; it is also possible when more convenient to submit contributions directly to the most appropriate editorial board member (for areas of specialization and languages in which each board member will accept papers, refer to the Editorial Board Membership listing on the masthead). Authors writing in a language not their own are advised to consult a native user of the language of composition before submitting their papers for consideration.

All contributions will be refereed. Copies of the referees' comments will be forwarded to the author along with the Editor's decision. Our policy is to provide a source for the most expeditious publication possible at the lowest possible cost to subscribers of papers of high scholarly quality.

GUIDELINES FOR INITIAL SUBMISSION OF MANUSCRIPTS. Three (3), paper copies of manuscripts for consideration should if possible be sent to either the editor or the most appropriate editorial board member. Inability of authors to provide the requisite number of copies will NOT however be grounds for automatic rejection of their work for consideration. Papers should be double-spaced and have generous margins for corrections and referees' comments.

The editor will notify the author of the decision and provide the author with a copy of referees' reports.

GUIDELINES FOR PREPARATION OF FINAL MANUSCRIPTS.

General formatting instructions. Upon notification of acceptance of papers for publication, authors should prepare their own complete and corrected manuscript. This places the primary duty for the careful preparation of manuscripts upon the individual authors. Please examine recent issues of Modern Logic to become familiar with our formatting and style requirements; upon request, the editor will provide authors with a copy of MLP's "Instructions and Information for Authors". Authors planning to do their own typesetting who are T_EXperts can obtain copies of the Modern Logic L^AT_EX style sheet from either the editor or any editorial board member.

Electronic submissions are strongly encouraged. Papers submitted electronically may be sent either on diskette or by electronic mail in either T_EX (L^AT_EX is strongly preferred) or composed using the author's preferred wordprocessor.

Electronic files submitted on diskette should have labels indicating (a) the platform (Mac, DOS, Windows, etc) on which the file was created and (b) the application(s) used to create the file(s) and the version of T_EX being used. Encrypted files and most compressed files, however, are unacceptable. Files may be compressed only provided they are saved either as self-extracting or have been compressed using StiffIt. Self-extracting files should include the suffix

“.sea” in their names; StuffIt files should include the suffix “.sit” in their names. No other compression tools should be used. In addition to the electronic file, one hard copy (paper copy) of the final manuscript should be submitted regardless of the software used for preparation of electronic files. Authors unable to provide electronic files must provide three scanner-legible hard copies.

Authors are responsible for the careful preparation of their own work, and the editor may return to the author for further work any paper requiring major corrections or revisions.

Use of unpublished materials. When references to personal letters, papers presented at meetings, and other unpublished material are used, copies should be made available to the Editor if such material may be of help in the evaluation of the paper.

For the transliteration of the Cyrillic alphabet, we have adopted the current system in use by Mathematical Reviews as the general rule. Exceptions are made only in the case of names which have already attained a common accepted transliteration or when the person owning the name has selected a preferred transliteration. Use the author's own transliteration for works written in French, English, German, etc. Transliterations requiring use of diacritical marks should be avoided whenever possible.

For additional guidance in formatting and bibliographic style, please refer to A Manual for Authors of Mathematical Papers (Providence, American Mathematical Society, 8th edition, 1984), Ellen Swanson, Mathematics into Type (Providence, American Mathematical Society, revised edition, 1979, 1986 reprint), or contact our editorial office for a copy of MLP's "Instructions and Information for Authors".

Inability of authors to provide final copy of their papers in accordance with Modern Logic Publishing's guidelines will NOT be grounds for automatic rejection of their work for publication.

Authors unable to provide electronic files may either submit three (3) copies of clean paper manuscripts or may request Modern Logic Publishing to prepare final manuscripts for them at a cost of US$10.00 per page. In that case, Modern Logic Publishing can ordinarily undertake only the correction of minor grammatical and spelling errors, and authors should then be aware that publication of their work may be considerably delayed.

General instructions for author-prepared hard copy. When submitting hard [paper] copies, be certain that the text is completely legible and clean, without smudges, pencilled alterations, erasures, or numerous corrections, on paper of sufficient strength to withstand repeated multiple handlings. All hand-written symbols and hand-drawn diagrams should be carefully done in non-smudging dark black ink (preferably India ink), with due caution taken to distinguish symbols on the base line from subscripts, superscripts, and more complicated indices such as sub-subscripts and subscripts to superscripts. Duplicates of each such drawing or diagram should also be submitted on separate sheets.

OFFPRINTS POLICY. In order to continue to maintain our low subscription rates, Modern Logic Publishing does not provide free offprints of papers. However all contributors including non-subscribers automatically receive a complimentary copy of any issues of the journal in which their papers appear. Authors may order offprints only at the time of notification of acceptance of their contribution for a charge of US$20 per 5 copies. Additional copies of the issue in which your contribution appears can be obtained for a cost of US$ 10.00 per copy (cost includes shipping at the most economical rate available).

COPYRIGHT TRANSFER AGREEMENT. Submission of a manuscript to Modern Logic constitutes an agreement that, upon acceptance for publication, the author automatically transfers the copyright in the manuscript to Modern Logic Publishing for the purposes of publication.
